15 DEFENDANT HARD DRIVE PRODUCTIONS, INC.’S
16 NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS AMENDED
17 COMPLAINT

18 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on March 13, 2012, at 10:00 am Defendant, HARD DRIVE 19 PRODUCTIONS (“Defendant” or “Hard Drive”), by and through its undersigned counsel and 20 pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12 and other governing law, shall appear before the 21 Honorable United States Magistrate Judge Howard R. Lloyd at the San Jose Courthouse, Courtroom
22 2 – 5th Floor located at 280 South 1st Street, San Jose, CA 95113 and present its Motion to Dismiss
23 Plaintiff, LIUXIA WONG’s, Amended Complaint (“Complaint”), and supporting its Motion
24 Defendant states as follows:

25 BACKGROUND

26 On November 21, 2011, Hard Drive filed a Complaint in this District captioned Hard Drive
27 Productions, Inc. v. John Doe, Case No. 11-CV-5630 (the “Hard Drive” Case). In it, Plaintiff
28 alleged that an anonymous copyright infringer, associated with an Internet Protocol (“IP”) address

1 set forth in the Complaint, infringed copyrighted material owned by Hard Drive. Hard Drive further 2 alleged that “Because the relationship between an [IP] account holder and infringer can be imperfect, 3 [Hard Drive] now files this action to complete its investigation into the infringer’s identity and, if 4 necessary, to prosecute the infringer for his blatant violation of [Hard Drive’s] copyright.” (Hard 5 Drive Case Dkt. #1 at ¶¶ 1, 2.) In the Complaint, Hard Drive identified Plaintiff, Liuxia Wong, as 6 the account holder associated with the IP address, but did not allege that she infringed the copyright.
7 (Id.) Instead, in its Complaint Hard Drive stated that Ms. Wong was not likely to be the infringer
8 simply by virtue of being the account holder. (Id.)

9 On January 6, 2012, Hard Drive filed an Ex Parte Petition for Leave to Take Expedited
10 Discovery to Identify John Doe seeking the Court’s leave to issue a deposition subpoena to account 11 holder Liuxia Wong. (Hard Drive Dkt. #9.) In that petition Hard Drive affirmatively stated it was 12 unaware of who the infringer was. (Id.) Hard Drive required a deposition subpoena because Ms.
13 Wong’s counsel had adopted a tactic of attempting to avoid all of Plaintiff’s attempts to confer in 14 this matter—ostensibly hoping that the matter would fade over time. The Court granted that petition
15 on January 18, 2012, and Hard Drive subsequently issued a notice for Plaintiff to appear for a 16 deposition on February 14, 2012. The Hard Drive Case case is now pending before Judge Yvonne
17 Gonzalez Rogers.

18 Shortly after that deposition notice issued, Plaintiff on January 30, 2012 filed a Complaint, 19 and on February 3, 2012 filed an Amended Complaint against Defendant and “Does 1-50.” In it, 20 Plaintiff seeks, among other things, a declaratory judgment that she is not liable to Hard Drive for 21 copyright infringement—a matter that is not even in dispute as Hard Drive believes a member of Ms.
22 Wong’s household is the likely infringer.

23 The Court should dismiss the Amended Complaint (referred to hereinafter as the 24 “Complaint”) for three, independent reasons. First, Plaintiff has failed to allege facts suggesting that 25 venue in this Court is proper. Second, there is no case or controversy at issue in this litigation
26 because no party has alleged that Plaintiff has infringed a copyright. In fact, Plaintiff’s counsel
27 claims that she is not the “John Doe” infringer in the Hard Drive Case, and at this point, Hard Drive 28

1 has only asked to depose her in order to identify the actual infringer. Third, even if this Court does 2 not dismiss the Complaint on other grounds, Plaintiff has the opportunity to seek declaratory
3 judgment and other relief if she is named as the defendant in the Hard Drive Case, which Hard Drive
4 filed before this case. Under Federal procedural law, the Court should dismiss this second-filed case
5 regarding Hard Drive's copyright.

6 ARGUMENT

7 The legal standard governing motions to dismiss is:

8 [T]he pleading standard Rule 8 announces does not require detailed factual allegations, but it
9 demands more than an unadorned, the defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation. A 10 pleading that offers labels and conclusions or a formulaic recitation of the elements of a 11 cause of action will not do. Nor does a complaint suffice if it tenders naked assertions devoid 12 of further factual enhancement.

13 To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted
14 as true, to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. A claim has facial plausibility 15 when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable 16 inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged. . . .

17 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 1949-50 (2009) (internal quotations and citations omitted). As 18 detailed below, the Complaint here falls well short of meeting this standard.

19 I. THE COURT SHOULD DISMISS THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE 20 PLAINTIFF HAS FAILED TO ALLEGE FACTS SUGGESTING THAT 21 THIS IS THE PROPER VENUE

22 Plaintiff affirmatively alleges that venue is proper in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern 23 District of California, but she inexplicably failed to file in that district, and further failed to allege 24 facts sufficient to show that venue is proper in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of 25 California.

26 Venue for claims asserted under the Copyright Act is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 1400(a), 27 which requires that a civil suit to enforce the Copyright Act be brought in a judicial district "in 28 which the defendant or his agent resides or may be found." 28 U.S.C. § 1400(a). Section 1400(a)

1 thus requires that every single defendant can be “found here” in order for venue to be proper in this 2 Court. The Ninth Circuit interprets this statutory provision to allow venue in any judicial district in 3 which the defendant would be amenable to personal jurisdiction if the district were a separate state.
4 Brayton Purcell LLP v. Recordon & Recordon, 575 F.3d 981(9th Cir. 2009).

5 Plaintiff has failed to allege facts sufficient to establish that venue for this declaratory 6 judgment action is proper in this Court. Indeed, Plaintiff admits in the Complaint that “Venue is 7 proper in the Eastern District of California pursuant to 28 U.S.C. section 1400(a) as Hard Drive
8 has claimed that plaintiff infringed its purported copyrighted work by downloading such works 9 where she resides.” (Dkt. #4 at ¶12 (emphasis added).) While Plaintiff asserts that venue is also 10 proper in the Northern District of California because “Hard Drive has consented to the jurisdiction of 11 this court by filing action number 4:11-cv-05630-RS in this district and by its conduct which has 12 created an actual and continuing controversy such that the court needs to declare the rights and other 13 legal relations of plaintiff who is seeking such declarations from the court” (id. at ¶13), that is not a 14 basis for venue set forth in Section 1400(a) of the Copyright Act. The Court should therefore 15 dismiss the Complaint because Plaintiff has failed to allege facts suggesting that this is the proper 16 venue.

17 II. THIS CASE FAILS TO IDENTIFY A CLAIM OR CONTROVERSY.

18 The Court should also dismiss the Complaint because the Complaint fails to identify a claim 19 or controversy. Plaintiff claims that she did not infringe Hard Drive’s copyright; and Hard Drive has 20 not alleged that she has done so. Because there is no claim or controversy at issue, this Court lacks 21 subject matter jurisdiction and should dismiss the Complaint.

22 Specifically, Plaintiff alleges that “she was prepared to execute a declaration under penalty of 23 perjury that: (1) she did not download the movie [referenced in this litigation], and (2) she did not 24 tell anyone else to download the movie for her, and (3) she did not know anyone else was using her 25 computer or network equipment to download the movie.” (Dkt. #4 at ¶72.)

26 And Hard Drive has not alleged that she infringed on its copyright. In the Hard Drive Case, 27 Hard Drive alleges copyright infringement on the parts of an individual, and several coconspirators

1 of that individual, whose identities it presently does not know. Hard Drive alleged that it seeks to 2 learn the identity of one individual associated with a specific IP address, who infringed on its 3 copyright. (Hard Drive Case Dkt. #1, ¶1.) Hard Drive did not name Plaintiff, who admits that she 4 owns the IP address, as the Defendant in the Hard Drive Case. Indeed, Hard Drive’s only request to 5 date to the Court in the Hard Drive case relating to Plaintiff is to allow for her deposition, which the 6 Court has granted Hard Drive leave to do.

7 Finally, in the communications that Hard Drive’s counsel did have with Plaintiff’s counsel, 8 Hard Drive’s counsel made it abundantly clear that Hard Drive did not believe that Ms. Wong, in 9 light of the nature of Hard Drive’s content, was plausibly the infringer. (Exhibit A, Declaration of 10 Brett L. Gibbs at ¶¶ 2,3.) Instead, Hard Drive indicated to Plaintiff’s counsel that it believed that a 11 member of Ms. Wong’s household or a guest/tenant was the likely infringer. (Id.) This is why
12 Plaintiff’s offer of a declaration of innocence had no relevance to Hard Drive’s position in this case 13 and why Ms. Wong’s innocence is not a matter of controversy between Hard Drive and Ms. Wong.

14 It is beyond argument that under Article III of the U.S. Constitution, Federal Courts only 15 have jurisdiction over actual cases or controversies, and that Federal Courts will not render advisory 16 opinions. See, e.g., Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 399-402 (1821); Flast v. Cohen, 392 U.S. 83, 17 96-97 (1968). Neither Plaintiff nor Defendant Hard Drive has alleged that Plaintiff infringed the 18 copyright at issue in this litigation. Because this issue is not in dispute, there is presently no case or 19 controversy, and the Court should dismiss the Complaint.

20 III. THE COURT SHOULD DISMISS THE COMPLAINT BECAUSE THE 21 HARD DRIVE* CASE IS FIRST-FILED AND ALREADY PENDING.

22 The Court should also dismiss the Complaint because, even if there were a case or 23 controversy at issue in this matter (which there is not), they are already the subject of litigation in the 24 Hard Drive Case, which was the first-filed of the two.

25 A district court has authority to dismiss a lawsuit “for reasons of wise judicial 26 administration,” where as here “it is duplicative of a parallel action already pending in another 27 federal court.” Serlin v. Arthur Anderson & Co., 3 F.3d 331 (7th Cir. 1997) (quoting Ridge Gold
28 Standard Liquors v. Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., 572 F.Supp. 1210, 1213 (N.D. Ill. 1983).)

1 Under this “First-Filed” doctrine, an action filed and pending in one jurisdiction should be given 2 precedence over a parallel cause of action involving the same facts and parties filed later, absent
3 countervailing “special factors” that do not appear in this case. Id.; see also Northwest Airlines, Inc.
4 v. American Airlines, Inc., 989 F.2d 1002, 1008 (8th Cir. 1993) (where proceedings involving the 5 same parties and issues are pending simultaneously in different federal courts, the first-filed of the 6 two takes priority). The purpose of this doctrine is to preserve judicial resources and avoid 7 conflicting rulings; it “gives priority, for purposes of choosing among possible venues when parallel 8 litigation has been instituted in separate courts, to the party who first establishes jurisdiction.” Id.
9 (citation omitted).

10 Two actions are considered to be parallel if they involve substantially the same parties and 11 the same issues, filed in different courts. Such actions are duplicative if the “claims, parties and 12 available relief do not significantly differ between the two actions.” Ridge Gold, 572 F.Supp. at 13 1213 (citation omitted). And where the actions are duplicative, the priority should go to the suit 14 filed first. See, e.g., Martin v. Graybar Elec. Co., 266 F.2d 202, 204 (7th Cir. 1959) (“Two 15 simultaneously pending lawsuits involving identical issues and between the same parties ... is 16 certainly anything but conducive to the orderly administration of justice. We believe that it is 17 important that there be a single determination of a controversy between the same litigants and,
18 therefore, a party who first brings [an] issue into a court of competent jurisdiction should be free 19 from vexation of concurrent litigation over the same subject matter...”)

20 As set forth above, neither Plaintiff nor Hard Drive has alleged that Plaintiff infringed upon 21 Hard Drive’s copyright. As such the Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, and will only have 22 jurisdiction if Hard Drive ultimately names Plaintiff as the John Doe defendant in the Hard Drive
23 Case. In that event, the Hard Drive Case and this case will clearly be duplicative, involving the 24 same claims, parties and available relief. For that reason, if the Court does not dismiss the 25 Complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, it should dismiss the Complaint because it is 26 duplicative of the first-filed Hard Drive Case.
